

Government

The formal institution of control of the actions of people in groups

Governments historically formed with foundations in inequity of survival resources

Enlightenment philosophers argued that governments should only exist with the consent of the governed. These ideas (i.e. Social Contract theory) became the foundation of the justification of the American Revolution and subsequent spread of democratic ideas (e.g. French Revolution) across much of the globe.